

New Research Study by Open Doors Organization

“Opening doors for people with disabilities in travel and tourism”

2014 Study Among Adults with Disabilities: Travel and Hospitality

Open Doors Organization (ODO) conducted the first-ever nationwide studies of American adult travelers with disabilities in 2002 and 2005. This 2014 follow-up study will:

- Measure general travel behaviors including how often they travel, how much money they spend, and which sources of information and technology they rely on;
- Gauge experiences with airlines, airports, cruise lines, destinations, hotels, restaurants, and more;
- Determine the obstacles that adults with disabilities encounter in their travels;
- Estimate the current and potential economic impact of the disability community in the US;
- Compare 2014 findings to the 2002 and 2005 ODO studies to reveal possible differences over time.
